Century. She had a parcel, small and round, One lovey afternoon last summer I offered, as in duty bound, To take it from her.

She thanked me with a gracious smile, As sweet as rosy lips could make it; It was so small, 'twas not worth while To let me take it.

Again I offered, as before, Of that slight burden to relieve her. Ske'd rather not: "Pray say no more?" Twould really grieve her.

I ceased to plead; she seemed content; The thing was small, and neatly corded, And so along our way we went To where she boarded.

But when upon the stoop she stood And ere our last adieus were uttered, She eyed me in a roguish mood, And softly muttered,

As swung the door to let her through, And left me there all unresisting: "I don't think very much of you For not insisting."

A Hangarian statistician has been studying the effect of comfort on longevity. His tables show that the richest people have an average life of fifty-two years, the middling forty-six, and the poor only forty-one and a half. A wellto-de man is as liable to infections disease as a pauper, while diptheria, croup, whooping cough, and scarlet fever are more prevalent among the rich. Consumption and comparatively free from brain fever.

A new and less objectionable than the ordinary use has been found for the tobacco plant. Its stems and waste are claimed to be equal to linen rags in the manufacture of paper. Tobacco stock costs less than $10 a ton; linen rags $70 to $80. There is no expense for assorting the former and little shrinkage, as against a loss of one-third in rags. The yearly tobacco waste is estimated in the last census reports at from 3,000. 000 to 4,000,000 pounds, and is increasing, while all other paper stock is decreasing in 'supply and increasing in cost.

a very good plan for making medicated nest eggs. Here it is: Cut a hole in one end of the egg as big as this capital O. In the other end put a pin hole. Now blow out the contents and you have the empty shells. Next mix plaster of Paris and water together to the consistency of cream, and add a few drops of earbolic acid. Pour this into the shell until it is filled, and in twenty-four hours it will be dry and you will have a medicated nest egg. I have tried this pneumonia claim the poor, who are and find it works admirably. Five cents worth of plaster of Paris will make a dozen, and that amount of carbolic acid is suffithe hens go on the nest and sit on them every day, they thus take an |involuntary dose of anti-vermin medicine. There is no danger of these eggs being broken and eaten up, if the fowls can get any gravel. I have known of chickens endeavoring to eat them when there is no lime at hand.

sexes that I bitterly complain of

is the barefacedness imposed on women by nature. If a man has a big Roman nose he lets a fierce mustache grow under it and becomes a typical military man, notwithstanding the fact that hidden by his Napoleonic goatee is a miserable, puny, retreating chin. If his nose is pug he gives it all possible prominence by shaving clean in its immediate vicinity, growing some side-whiskers away back on his fat cheeks, and so producing the likeness of a solid businessman. In case his features are nothing in particular, except that the lines of fifty years are deep around his mouth, he conceals them under a heavy mustache and passes for a youngish sort of a bachelor until time ought to have made him a grandfather. Now, in spite of all the calumnions accusations of falsity in the matter of our adornment, the faces of my sex have to pass for just about what they are worth. We may do something to improve hues in skin and hair, but the outlines of our visages cannot be materially altered. We may sweeten our mouths with a careful expression of amiability, or keep our lips shaped in a bewitching suggestiveness of kisses; but as likely as
